BELLE GLADE — PAHOKEE, FL.

27 win at PH&R Sat

BELLE GLADE — The Burger King on South Main Street opened in time for 27 Glades area youngsters to compete in what is expected to become the first annual Pitch, Hit and Run, and the city's Airport Park opened just in time to provide the arena.

Pitch, Hit and Run is professional baseball's answer to football's Punt, Pass and Kick and while PPK is sponsored by the Ford Motor Company nationally, PH&R is sponsored nationally by Burger King Restaurants and co-sponsored locally by the City of Belle Glade's Recreation Department.

While City Recreation Coordinator Jane Williams said she was disappointed at the turnout Saturday morning at the new park, she and Burger King Manager Bob Sand expressed confidence participation will grow as youngsters become more familiar with it.

As in PPK, competition is divided into six age groups ranging from 8 to 13 year-olds so the younger kids don't have to compete with the older ones. Also, like PPK, the baseball competition is open to girls and several participated Saturday morning with one, Shirley Williams, winning first place in the 12-year old competition.

A familiar name came up in the 10-year old division when Monroe Young, who advanced all the way to Houston last fall before being eliminated in the PPK competition, won first place in his age group.

The first and second place winners in Saturday morning's competition won gold and silver medals to be hung around their necks with red, white and blue ribbons. Each of these 12 youngsters, and those people working with them, were treated to lunch by Burger King, Sands said.

As the name suggests, the competition was split up into three phases and points were accumulated by the participants to pitch a baseball into a target net, to throw up and bat a baseball and to run

Turner says

GC record of escapes good

By Dean Jones
BELLE GLADE — Glades Correctional Institution has had a "wonderful" record over the past five years, according to GCI Superintendent R.V. Turner, despite criticisms over the past week in the wake of the escape of four close custody prisoners last week.

"The difference," Turner said during an interview Monday, "is that these people left from the inside of the prison. Before this escape, we've lost only one close custody prisoner in the past five years."

Turner noted that 378 of the 750-800 prisoners in the prison's compound are close custody, while the rest make up the medium and minimum custody prisoners for which the facility was designed.

The superintendent said a number of steps have been taken during his five-year tenure to make the GCI compound more secure, including the installation of electronic surveillance equipment between a twin fence surrounding the compound.

He said another, more recent addition was the raise of the observation platform at the main gate to the compound, making it similar to an airport control tower and giving guards there free surveillance of the entire compound while also installing more electronic equipment there.

The problem, however, is that GCI guards check out more prisoners (above 400) every day to go to work on details outside the compound than does any other prison in the state.

Adding to the problem, he said, is the chronic shortage of qualified personnel.

"When we had 75 guards working at GCI," Turner said, "we had employment problems. Now we have 300 budgeted positions and we have employment problems."

"The pay isn't the entire problem," he said, although he pointed out that state correctional officers get paid about 20 percent less than do other law enforcement officers in the area. "Many times, it's the public image generated by editorial cartoons that make them (the correctional officers) look like idiots and foolish editorials written by people who don't know

MIAMI — One of the four prisoners who escaped last Tuesday morning from Glades Correctional Institution in Belle Glade was recaptured Monday hiding in the attic of his parents' home in Miami.

Back in custody after a week's freedom was James Layfield, 26, who was serving a life sentence for murder.

The other three escapees were still at large as of this morning but Layfield reportedly provided officers with some of the missing details of the escape, including the facts that the prisoners hid Tuesday in a Belle Glade area pump house and hitch-hiked that night to Lake Worth where they split up.

Adams goes for third

Judge Don T. Adams

Judge Don T. Adams filed for re-election to his third four-year term as the Glades' first county judge, noting he had to complete approximately ten times the amount of paperwork he had to complete when he was appointed to the position eight years ago.

Taking a break from his regular Thursday morning court schedule, Adams reminisced over the changes in the judiciary system in the Glades, many of which he helped make, since Governor Reubin Askew appointed him in August 1972 to replace Judge James L. Tyson.

Tyson had retired due to ill health from his duties as magistrate judge and small claims judge, the only duties performed by the court in the Palm Beach County Glades Office Building at the time.

Since then, Adams noted, the local court has started handling felony cases, made possible by the adoption of Article V of the state constitution, divorces, juvenile cases, jury trials and many other functions formerly the exclusive purview of the court system in West Palm Beach.

In order to handle this type of case load, Adams was first named a county judge and then given some, but not all, the powers of a circuit judge.

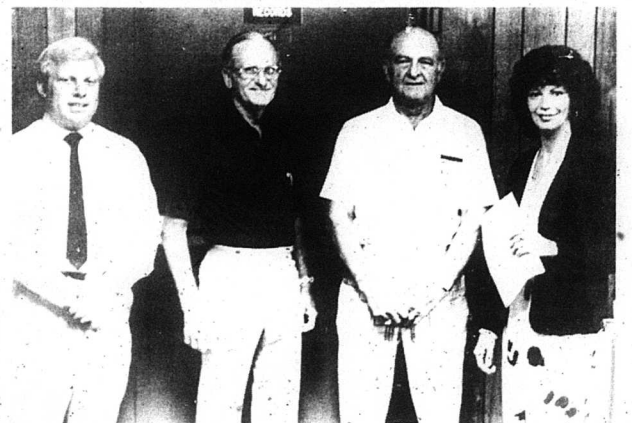

Judge Adams said that when he first put on his robes of office, he was spending two days a week in West Palm Beach and that during that time, he was working more and accomplishing less than since then, when he has been presiding over an ever increasing variety of cases.

"That was a personal hard ship," he recalled. "Now, we're handling four to five times as much work and I don't feel nearly as pushed."

The first thing Adams pushed for, and got, was the authority to hear felony cases when no jury trials were needed.

The second item was divorces. While Judge Tyson had been allowed to preside over hearings as special master, now Adams said he spends two days a month on divorce hearings as a full judge.

WASTING NO TIME in qualifying for the Sept. 9 Belle Glade city election were incumbents William Altman and Ralph Kirk and Charles Goodlett, a political newcomer but no stranger to city politics. Swearing in the candidates, all within moments of the opening qualification period, was City Clerk June Boglioli.

Taylor files for school board

BELLE GLADE — Calling for quality education and full-time school days for students, Lavoise Taylor became the second Glades resident to file for the newly created District 7 Palm Beach County School Board seat when she qualified Monday.

"I believe students in the county and in the Glades," Lavoise Taylor said Monday night, "may not be working up to their potentials. I believe there are a number of problems in the school system and there are several solutions to those problems."

Miss Taylor said the first thing she would like to do would be to make school a full-time occupation for students, saying there are enough things to offer seniors to keep them in school from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. every day with beneficial results for the students and the community.

"I would also like to see us go back to basics," she said. "I think if we go back to the basics, we would be able to eliminate the need for the Six 'R's: Remedial Reading, Remedial Writing and Remedial Rhythmic."

"Number three," she said, "I don't think the school board members are accessible enough to the members of the community, particularly the parents. If I'm elected, I would take it upon myself to

Three file in Belle Glade

BELLE GLADE — Three men, including one newcomer to city politics and two incumbents, wasted no time Friday morning in qualifying as candidates for the two at-large city commission seats up for grabs in the Sept. 9 city election.

Group One incumbent Tom Altman was the first to be sworn in by City Clerk June Boglioli at 8 a.m. as a candidate for re-election while Group Two incumbent W.R. "Ralph" Kirk and challenger Charles Goodlett, a novice in electoral politics but who has 32 years in city government, waited their turns.

Altman was qualifying for his fourth two-year term on the commission. He has served two one-year terms as mayor. He was first elected, at the age of 22, in 1974 after resigning after two years as an assistant to then City Manager William Mallory.

After qualifying Friday morning to run for re-election, Altman was elected President that afternoon by the Palm Beach County Municipal League while his fellow commissioner, Randy Davidson, was named representative of District Five, the district corresponding to County Commission District Five.

Altman has served for several years with the Municipal League, most recently on the executive committee. He is also a member of the Palm Beach Area Planning Board. He lives at 609 N.E. 22nd St. with his wife, Deborah, and their two sons, Patrick and Parker.

Kirk is seeking his sixth two-year term as city commissioner. He is an agent for Peninsular Life Insurance Co. He is now serving his second one-year term as mayor and he lives at 172 N.E. Third St. with his wife, Ruby. They have four children, all grown and living elsewhere. He is a member of the Elks, the Masons and a charter member of the Belle Glade Lions Club.

Charles Goodlett retired in December from his position as City Public Safety Director, a job he had held for several years in conjunction with his position of police chief. He has served the city for 32 years and, on occasion, he served as co-acting city manager. Goodlett has, at one time or another, helped build Belle Glade, including the city's Police Station, Second Street Bridge and the Belle Glade Marina.

Goodlett lives with his wife, Imogene, at 1824 West Canal St. South. They have one son, David Goodlett, an aide to County Commissioner Bill Bailey. David was on hand to see his father sworn in as a candidate. Both the father and son are long time members of the Glades Republican Club.

"My intention," Goodlett said, "is to run a campaign based on a track record of 32 years service in the City of Belle Glade and not on any shortcomings my opponent may have in my opinion."

gating the need for Glades residents to travel to the coast.

The third item which Adams pushed for, and received, was permission to start hearing juvenile cases, a job he said is more exacting than any other single phase of his work.

He hears juvenile cases every other Monday, alternating with the divorce cases, and noted this was the type of case in which every "I" must be dotted and "L" crossed.

The change, which Adams was also partially responsible for, which probably impacted more on Glades residents than any other single change was the installation of a jury pool in the Glades, setting up a venire here to hear jury trials and release Glades residents from the requirement to travel to West Palm Beach to serve jury duty.

Adams said last week the new jury venire was made possible by special legislation and has been used as a test by the county judiciary. He said people in the South County area were also asking for a separate jury venire but it now appears that push has been forestalled.

Adams also noted that the increased case load on the court in the Glades has resulted in a corresponding load on the clerk of the court's office in the Glades office building, and an increase from two employees to a staff of 13 who now handle virtually every item of business that can be handled on the coast, including the issuance of passports and marriage licenses.

One of the services that still can't be handled in the Glades Office Building, he noted however, was the filing of a candidate for county office.

Adams noted that when he was appointed to serve the rest of Judge Tyson's term in 1972, he was in the middle of a two-week summer camp with the Army Reserve.

He said he flew into Tallahassee on a Saturday morning and filed two to three pages of documents to apply for the job. They opened up the Secretary of State's office, he said, "and within a half hour, I'd finished and was on my way back to summer camp." This year, he noted, largely because of the financial disclosure requirements, he'd been required to file some 80 pages of documents and, because he made a mistake by omitting a group he was filing down, he had to file the entire document, all 60 pages of it, over again.

He said he probably wouldn't be able to file for office in half a day now, much less half an hour.

Shortly after he filed for re-election last week, Adams, who is now a full colonel in the Army Reserve Corps of Engineers, was on his way to complete the final two weeks of a two-year course of study at the Army's War College in Reno, Nev.

Adams dissipated during a press interview last week the notion he was a native of Pahokee. He said he was born in Georgia and moved here within 30 days of his birth.

"But I can't in all honesty say I was born and raised in the Glades, even though my parents were living here before I was born."

He was educated in local schools and received a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from the University of Florida in 1957 and his Juris Doctorate degree in law from George Washington University in 1963.

Adams was a working attorney in Pahokee for several years before being appointed to the bench in August 1972. He has run for reelection twice since then and has been unopposed both times. He now has more tenure as a county judge than anyone in the county except Judge Howard Harrison.

For one of either of two reasons, this could be the last time Adams will run as a the second time in three years. Voters who wish to vote in the city election must register at the county since no voters have been registered at city hall since the county took over the responsibility.

Those who fail to register for the city election or either of the two primaries have until Oct. 4 to register to vote in the Nov. 4 general election.

Game officers get bikes

TALLAHASSEE — Sportsmen utilizing Florida's great out of doors will have a new sound to listen for while in the woods.

Along with the singing of birds and the humming of insects will be the droning of the newest law enforcement tools of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission — motorcycles.

In a move designed to help save energy and increase patrol effectiveness, 10 motorcycles have been purchased for use in selected areas across the state, said Colonel Robert M. Brantly, executive director of the Commission.

"Purchase of these motorcycles is just one of the ways the Commission is directing efforts towards energy conservation," Brantly said. "We chose these patrol vehicles not only for their high mileage per gallon and low noise levels, but also for their suitability for off road travel."

For the next six months, the Commission will evaluate the effectiveness and economy of using these motorcycles as a secondary vehicle for patrol," he added.

BELLE GLADE — Pre-admitting, a new concept recently installed at Glades General Hospital, is expected to ease considerably the paperwork patients go through when they have to go to the hospital, bringing in an era of hassle-free admitting.

There are several advantages to being pre-admitted, according to Amy Teosky, Glades General public information specialist. If a patient is pre-admitted three days in advance, it opens up eligibility for a private accommodation.

"Many of the necessary hospital procedures will be scheduled for the patient," Mrs. Teosky said, "if we know of the pending arrival. This will possibly reduce the hospital stay and cost by one day."

Pre-admitting by only 24 hours will mean the patient won't have to get to the admitting office to fill out forms when he or she is admitted.

Admitting Coordinator Karen Naile will call the patient a day before admission to provide special instructions. She will inform the patient of laboratory appointments, arrival time, room number and what insurance information should be brought along.

Upon arrival, Mrs. Naile will accompany the patient to his or her room and have the patient sign the necessary papers. The patient's chart and past records will already be at the nurses' station for the physician's convenience.

Anyone anticipating a hospital stay at Glades General can get more information about pre-admitting by contacting their family physician or Mrs. Naile at the hospital: 996-6571, extension 414.

KAREN NAILE, Admitting Coordinator, has been employed at Glades General Hospital since last November. Karen has lived most of her life in the Belle Glade-Clewiston-Pahokee area.

Tax incentive to cure country's ills

WASHINGTON — The nation's economy is in the doldrums and economic forecasts do not give us much hope for improvement in the future.

Unemployment has soared to 7.8 percent and is rising steadily. But economic problems impact us all — whether we are working or out of a job.

The congressional Budget Office estimates that each one percent rise in the unemployment rate costs the federal government $25 to $29 billion because of lost revenue from former taxpayers no longer employed and higher spending for welfare, unemployment compensation, food, stamps and the like.

But the drain does not stop there. The high inflation spiral gripping our economy is forcing all taxpayers into higher and higher tax brackets. Although our real income is on the decline, the revenues of the federal government are constantly rising.

In fact, FY 81 will see the biggest peacetime tax increase in the history of this country. Taxpayers will pay $93 billion more in taxes this year not because of increased income, but because inflation is pushing us all into higher income brackets.

It is a vicious cycle: People out of work are costing the government more and people working are paying the government more and — bottom line — we are all losers!

The next question is obvious. What should be done to correct this problem?

There has been much hand-wringing in Washington over the present situation and the fact that the future bodes no better. We hear much debate, but see little meaningful action.

That was until the House and Senate introduced a tax proposal that can put brakes on our downhill economic trolley once and for all.

The Reagan Tax Cut Initiative consists of two parts. One is an across the board cut in individual income tax rates of 10 percent. The second is an accelerated depreciation plan, referred to as 10-5-3, which will streamline and drastically reduce the period of time in which business can recover their capital expenditures.

These are broad incentive-based tax cuts. They will effectively address the problem of declining productivity and the lagging economy which it has fostered.

Workers will once again have an incentive to shift to higher paying jobs. Workers will once again opt to increase workload, like overtime, since they will be able to keep a larger portion of their earnings. And workers will once again plan to save for their futures since Uncle Sam will demand less of their pay.

Our present tax policies have discouraged firms from renovating, modernizing and replacing their antiquated plants. Rather than continue down the course of our government subsidizing outdated plants and business, I think we should attack the cause of the disease.

10-5-3 would do just that.

Be enabling businesses to write off new buildings in ten years, new machinery in five years and new trucks and automobiles in three years we can open up the prospect of a boom in capital investment which would once again give us the most modern industrial base in the world.

Just the first year alone of 10-5-3 would enable business to boost capital investment by $5 billion — an amount that would create some 600,000 new jobs — enough to begin reindustrializing America.

This is a good plan — a responsible plan — and a plan that will get us back on solid economic ground in short order.

Unfortunately, politics will play heavy hand in this matter. Already, the U.S. Senate has defeated this tax incentive on two occasions.

But, we will continue working. We cannot afford to accept the status quo any longer.

Dear Editor:

I would like to extend my sincere thanks to the people of Cleveland for their support during the time I served as principal of Clevelston Elementary School. While in Cleveland, I found the community full of interested parents, dedicated to the improvement of their schools. Hopefully C.E.S. is well on its way to not only being the biggest but also the best.

In Hendry County, I also had the privilege of working with one of the best super-tendents in the state. During my three years in Hendry County, I witnessed Mr. Edwards make hundreds of major educational decisions. Many times his decisions were not what the people wanted to hear nor were they always politically sound, but they were in the best interest of the kids. In Hendry County under the leadership of Mr. Edwards, "kids came first."

The people of Hendry County are very fortunate to have such an excellent educational leader in their community. I just wish more people in Hendry County were aware of the "educational bargain they are getting in Hendry County."

Best Regards,

Veteran's Cemetery petition drive

Reflecting the growing unanimity and political clout of the many veterans organizations in Florida, the Governor's Advisory Council on Veterans Affairs has launched a statewide campaign petitioning the Congress and President Jimmy Carter to open a new Veterans Cemetery in central Florida.

The only active National Cemetery in Florida is located on the Pensacola Naval Station at Fort Barrancas. This Cemetery which serves the Florida Panhandle as well as Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, will be closed to further burials in four more years. The need for a new and more centrally located cemetery has long been known to the veterans groups in Florida.

Last year Governor Bob Graham and the Florida Cabinet agreed that the need was amply demonstrated when they unanimously voted to set aside up to 1200 acres of suitable lands in the Withlacoochee State Forest in Sumter County near the St. Catherine-Webster Interchange on I-75. Following the lead of Congressman Bill Chappell, the entire Florida delegation to the U.S. Congress signified their unanimous support in testimony before the U.S. House Veterans Affairs Committee. The Board of County Commissioners in Marion, Citrus and Sumter Counties have endorsed the proposal. All veterans groups in Florida with a combined active membership of over 200,000 men and women are actively supporting this drive.

While a 1200 acre cemetery could accommodate all of the 600,000 veterans expected to die in Florida in the next twenty years, the Advisory Council realistically expects that about one-half of that number to opt for burial in the new cemetery.

Because every veteran is entitled under current law to a $150 "Plot or Interment Allowance" in a private cemetery, the Council projects a net savings to the taxpayer in excess of $21,000,000 above and beyond initial construction costs and annual maintenance charges over the next twenty years. The $150 "plot" allowance is not paid when the Government furnishes the plot, as in a National Cemetery.

Petitions and a background pamphlet are available at every Post, Chapter or Barracks of all Veterans Organization as well as in the Office of the County Veterans Service Officers throughout Florida.

For more information - contact Roy H. Brooks, Jr., Chairman, Governor's Advisory Council on Veterans Affairs, Miami (305) 445-2424; Kenneth E. Doncaster, Chairman of the Council's Cemetery Committee, Inverness (904) 729-9296; and Michael J. Perricone, Bureau Chief of Field Service of the Florida Division of Veterans Affairs (813) 898-4443.

Gadflies - prison escape

In the wake of all the expert commentary over the recent quadruple escape at Glades Correctional Institution, it seems there is little left to say but a few observations are still in order.

First of all, there's a well-known fact: the hallowed walls of prisons everywhere that as long as there's prisons, there's trouble. And as long as there are prisoners, there are bound to be escapes.

Unfortunately, the cliché is less true because it's a cliché. As any student of prisons or the military arts can confirm, any tactic, tool or weapon, whether it's offensive or defensive, will soon be matched by someone who that tactic or weapon.

Second, just so long as the state's prisons are so overcrowded, close custody prisoners are incarcerated in institutions that were never meant to hold minimum or medium custody prisoners, we're making it easier for the escapes.

Third, just so long as we, the taxpayers, take the attitude we don't want to pay the price to build sufficient institutions and man them with personnel of the caliber required to forcibly house felons, it's going to be still easier to escape from the prisons we do have.

Fourth, we, the taxpayers, may just have to make up our mind about what we expect from our prisons and the people we hire to staff them. That cliché quoted above can't be disregarded but the number of escapes could be cut back considerably if the public makes up its mind that the primary function of our prisons should be to hold prisoners.

Just so long, however, as we regard prisons as places to rehabilitate criminals rather than separate them from society as a whole that's just how long we make it easier than it should be for those criminals to rejoin society before their prison terms are up.

Finally, there's another cliché: that a prison guard who lets a prisoner escape may as well follow him because the guard will be gone the next day anyway.

The headhunters will almost certainly find one person or persons at GCI to accept the blame for the four escapes last week, willingly or unwillingly and fairly or unfairly.

But the fact remains, as long as the public isn't interested in investing the money to build sufficient facilities and hire sufficient high caliber personnel to staff those facilities, we're going to continue to read about prison escapes... more than we care to read.

And that's a problem that won't be solved by anyone now working at GCI or Raiford, nor will it be solved by officials in Tallahassee or members of a grand jury, here or in Tallahassee.

We, every one of us, have got to decide first of all what we want our prisons to accomplish and then we've got to decide to pay for it.

Farm wage jumps

GAINESVILLE — Farm wages in Florida have surged ahead of other states, according to the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"It is interesting to note that the heavily unionized California farm workers are making substantially less when compared with the mostly non-union farm labor in Florida," commented Florida Farm Bureau Federation director of labor relations Al French.

Florida piece rate wages averaged $5.15 on an hourly basis during the April 6-12, 1980 survey. California, in second place, averaged only $4.61 for the same period. The national average for piece rates was $4.25.

Up 40 cents from January 1980, Florida's wage rates have increased 57 cents since April 1979. Piece rate wage is a method of payment using production incentives and is standard for most farm harvest workers.

The number of farm workers working on Florida farms was estimated at 90,000, an report stated.

Those who would steal from kids

There is no honor among thieves, but those who steal bread from senior citizens and toys from children may be held in particular contempt.

It has been reported that the pre-school and senior citizens programs, both located in the Harlem Academy Building, were plundered.

The two programs — one aimed at giving youngsters a fair start in life and the other toward enriching the quality of life for seniors who may not have enough to eat — have drawn praise from almost every quarter and been supported by local government, business, and the people of the community served.

Those who have learned of the break-in were outraged, and well they should be. And the thieves who carried out the sordid deed need to assess themselves and be ashamed.

Interesting interest

Quiz time, sports fans! What single item makes up the third largest line item on the 1980-81 national budget... assuming the latest compromise passes Congress and isn't vetoed by President Carter?

Give up? Well, it isn't Defense. At $153 billion, that's second place. It's not Income Security, that's the number one.

But coming in third place, weighing in at $72.2 billion, is the interest in the national debt, according to the release that came in last week from District 11 Congressman Dan Mica.

That doesn't include, by the way, any repayment on the principal of the debt; just the interest.

And it beats health services, which comes in fourth at $61.7 billion, education, training, employment and social services, which is fifth at $29.5 billion and $21.2 billion for six place veterans benefits and services.

Never mind the administration of justice, which gets only $4.6 billion, and agriculture, which will receive a grand total of $2.3 billion and comes in 16th place, or dead last. (Maybe there really is something to the farmer's claim that food and fiber are still the consumers' best bargain today.)

Actually, it shouldn't really surprise any of us that interest payments on the national debt are so high but it's one of those things that can still be a shocker.

And there are still people, even some conservative, who still claim that a simple balancing of the budget won't be beneficial to the national economy.

One can only wonder how they would feel if they were paying 11 percent of their personal income to pay off the interest to their debts.

Chamber regatta committees set

BELLE GLADE—Chamber of Commerce Director Gordon Corbin was named chairman of the Chamber's regatta on Nov. 9 during last Thursday's Chamber meeting and the directors agreed to sell a program to add revenue.

Most of the directors' conversation concerned the possibility of publishing a program, whether to sell it or give it away and whether the directors should take on the job of selling advertisements or farm out the job to professionals.

Bill Magill accepted the job of chairing the program committee after President Rupert "Bubba" Mock Jr. brought several programs used in other communities for their regattas for the directors to look over. Magill said he would report back after he and his committee members, James Gann and James Kelly, have had time to study the problem and come up with a recommendation.

The directors also:

- Moved to write a letter to Trailways Bus Lines protesting the planned stop of service through South Bay, Belle Glade and Pahokee of the only north-south bus routes in the area.

- Formed a list of 11 candidates to be placed on the ballot of the annual Chamber of Commerce election. The ballot, after it is finalized, will be mailed to chamber members on Aug. 17.

- Considered a proposal by Executive Secretary Jewel Crane to elect the Chamber president for two-year terms. Miss Crane said it takes six months for a director to fit into the role of president and on the final six months of the president's term, he is on the downhill slide toward the end of his term.

They were given three pitches, three times to connect hits (a minor change of the rules here was that each child had three hits while national rules call for three swings) and one run around the bases.

Scores were tallied by adding so many points given for the time it took to run the baselines to 50 points for each pitch that went into the target net and the number of feet of the best of the three hits.

Winners, in first and second place respectively, were 8-year olds Reenn Edmondson and Richard Woods, 9-year olds Leron Thomas and Danny Cook, 10-year olds Monroe Young and Michael Rouse, 11-year olds Anthony Williams and Alphonse Smith, 12-year olds Shirley Williams and Jimmy Johnson and 13-year olds Michael McCorty and Frank Garcia.

Put our Watt-WiseTM package in your new home It'll save you more than it costs.

A new Watt-Wise Living[™] home can save you up to 25% on electricity. That's up to 25% more than homes that meet all the requirements of Florida's new Energy-Efficiency Building Code.

How come Watt-Wise Living homes save so much in electricity? Because they're built according to FPL's energy-saving standards. Sure, a Watt-Wise home costs a little more in the beginning. But you'll get a payoff in extra savings on your electric bills for years to come from the very first month.

FPL's money-saving Watt-Wise homes have features like extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar and heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump, power savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors, (with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up).

So before you buy or construct a new home, ask your builder about FPL's Watt-Wise Living Program. Or, stop by your local FPL office and pick up a free information brochure.

what they're talking about."

Turner was referring to an editorial and cartoon published in Friday's Palm Beach Post. He said he hadn't read the editorial or cartoon, that he never reads The Post, but that he had been informed as to the content of the Friday edition.

"Supposing you were a young man who'd just taken a job as a correctional officer here," Turner said to illustrate his employment problems. "You'd have a week's orientation and, some time down the line, you'd have a month's training at Raiford, but that's later."

"Let's say you'd been working here for about three months and I told you that you were to be locked up in Dormitory B (the close custody dormitory at GCI). Normally, we have two men in the dormitory but tonight, we're short of men so you'll have to circulate by yourself among 160-170 convicted felons."

"That," Turner said in an aside, "is more felons than the average police officer will have to face during his entire career."

"While you're circulating among these felons," he continued, "You're supposed to be watching them to be sure they're not bothering the man sleeping above or below them, that they're not smoking marijuana or filing the bars in the windows."

"And while you're locked in with those 160 convicts," he said, "I'll tell you that they may curse you; they may spit on you and they may even take a swing at you if they think they can get away with it. But you're not supposed to do anything about it because you're supposed to be above that."

"And as a reward for being locked in with those inmates from midnight until they're let out for breakfast at 6:30 a.m.," he said, "I'll tell you you'll be paid the magnificent sum of $11,000 a year while guards doing the same job for the Dade County Department of Corrections are getting $17,000."

"Oh, yes," he went on, "if you foul up; if you don't do your job properly and something happens, you'll be made the subject of foolish editorials and cartoons that make you look like an idiot."

"How long," Turner asked, "do you think you'd want to continue with that job?"

Turner had just described the situation in Dormitory B the night of Monday, July 7, when four close custody prisoners made their escape at 1:33 a.m., although no one knew that until hours later because the prisoners weren't missed until 6:30 a.m.

He said the correctional officer on duty that night was a 58-year old man who, in retrospect, should never have been given that type of job, that he hadn't done his job or the prisoners would have been missed earlier in the night and that the officer had been fired.

Turner said there are 18 critical positions to be filled on the midnight shift, that there were only 13 men on duty the night of the escape and three of those had already worked one shift. He said that traditionally, the number of guards who call in sick on midnight shifts is double the number for either of the other two shifts.

"No matter how much electronic equipment you have," he said, "that accounts for only about five percent of the security. The other 95 percent is provided by personnel."

"We don't always get the type of officer we want," Turner said, "because that same officer is also being sought by the Florida Highway Patrol, the Dade County Department of Corrections, the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office and the Belle Glade Police Department."

One comparison Turner made between correctional officers and other law enforcement officers is that correctional officers are assaulted more often than any other type of officer, another reason he finds it difficult to staff GCI.

"But don't let that mislead you," he said. "From all the stories you hear about prisons in general and GCI in general, you'd think we didn't have any good officers. That's not true."

"The turnover in the prison system is not unusual," he said. "Here at the Belle Glade prison, we carry more vacancies than any other prison in the state. We have 103 Correctional Officer Ones budgeted and there is an average vacancy of 25 of those any given day, and I have seen the time when one third of the positions were vacant."

"But we have a nucleus of personnel who do a wonderful job," Turner said, "and I'm continually astonished they stay with us. The average member of that nucleus is a hardworking guy who pays his taxes, attends church and spends time with his children."

"He isn't lazy, he isn't a pervert and he isn't a Communist," Turner said. "He's just a person who has happened to choose prison work as his career and he's doing the best job he knows how."

As to sadism, or brutality, which is thought by some to run rampant among prison guards, Turner said he has worked for the prison system in Florida for 25 years and he's seen only two incidents of gratuitous brutality, although he said there have been other incidents of violence provoked by inmates in some manner.

"There are more regulations dealing with brutality by an officer towards an inmate," he said, "than there are dealing with brutality by an inmate towards an officer. The person most apt to brutalize an inmate is another inmate."

Turner said, for instance, that escapes from GCI or any other prison could be cut off by keeping the inmates inside the compound and posting armed guards around the perimeter.

"That would keep them inside," he said, "but they'd kill each other. It would be chaos. Utter chaos. And that's not what we want to do. I don't think it should be a tradeoff between security and rehabilitation because if we can rehabilitate a prisoner, he won't be back."

Turner said there are five primary factors considered in the custody classification of a prisoner, the classification which decides how tight will be the security for that prisoner.

He said those factors include the type of offense for which the prisoner is convicted, the length of the prisoner's sentence, his past or present record in prison, the location of his family and his general attitude.

Those factors decide whether a prisoner is classified close custody, under which an inmate can only leave the gate under armed guard and must remain continuously under visual supervision; medium custody, under which the inmate may leave the compound without an armed guard but must remain under constant visual supervision and minimum custody, under which an inmate must check in with an officer twice in the morning and twice in the afternoon.

Turner emphasized that the only reason any prisoner leaves the compound is on a work detail.

He also emphasized that while classification and the risk of an attempted escape is taken seriously at GCI, there are the ones who will fool even the experts.

"Usually," he said, "an inmate escapes from his sentence but we've had escapes by prisoners with only 60 days more time to serve."

Turner said there is only one work detail made up of close custody prisoners, usually numbering about 50, which is taken out of the compound each day. All the other close custody prisoners are given jobs within the compound, however.

And what of the correctional officers who guard those prisoners?

"I'll guarantee our personnel have a higher education level, on the average," Turner said, "than other industries in the area. For one thing, for an applicant to even be considered, he must have a high school education or a GED equivalent."

Three

"I have no ax to grind," he went on, "and, if I'm elected, I'm going to work in a team effort with the other four elected officials."

"I feel," Kirk said, "like the city has progressed considerably over the past six years which I have been a part of and I hope to have a further part in the next two years."

"I have no ax to grind and I intend to run a clean campaign," he said. "Chief Charles is a good friend and I hope we will be after this is over."

Goodlett said he'd challenged Kirk to a golf match after the election is over and Kirk commented that if the election goes like the golf game, he isn't worried, "because I'll beat him on the golf course."

Kirk, who had earlier consistently said he wouldn't run for re-election after serving this term, said he'd decided to run recently after a number of people had asked him to.

Altman said he, "would like to continue to participate in what I hope will be the continued progress of Belle Glade."

The three candidates, as of this morning, were the only ones in the city election: City Clerk June Boglioli, said the only other election candidate's packet which has been picked up from her office was by Alfred "Zack" Woodard, a consultant at Florida Rural Legal Services.

Fishing Tips

TIP OF THE WEEK:

Always carry a bailer in your boat. There are times when even boats with automatic bailers have problems. A hard to get at wire can come loose and problems. A hard to get at wire can come loose and problems. A hard to get at wire can come loose and problems.

A bailer can be made from a bleach bottle very quickly and is good insurance to have one along with you in a boat. They have a 1001 uses and are a very handy item. There are many number of containers that may be used to make bailers. You can buy several models at marine stores and all work equally well. A stitch in time!

This isn't, as some would have you believe, a vendetta to prevent anyone from fishing.

It is a plea to the legislators to eliminate a device that has the potential for depleting fish stocks to the point where there will not be any for either commercial or recreational fishermen.

Furthermore, the fish traps are non-selective devices that take untold quantities of beautiful tropical fishes and thus deprive the sport divers of the opportunity to observe these beautiful fish in their natural habitat.

Consequently, FLA is urging the passage of HB 406 and SB 46, which will prohibit the use, and possession of fish traps in Florida's saltwaters.

The Legislature has already been exposed to quivering-lipped accounts from certain trappers bemoaning the fact that if traps are banned, their lifelong livelihood will be denied them; that there won't be sufficient fish on the market to satisfy the public; and that the price will increase.

One can only question their credibility in light of the fact that fish traps only became evident of Florida's saltwaters after 1976; that the hook

A POPULAR way to hook a worm

THE LOWLY WORM.
This fish bait used by more fishermen than all other baits combined comes in a variety of sizes. From one inch to eight feet in length. Needless to say these particular lengths are not the most popular. Worms from 3" to 8" are the preferred sizes. The size used is dependent on what you are fishing for. The smaller worms are the favorite of those after panfish while the larger nightcrawler is the choice of bass fishermen. Don't ask what the 8 foot Australian worms are used for. It is safe to say the intended quarry must be gargantuan.

Most smaller worms may be procured by digging. Another method of taking worms is "grunting". In this method a stake is driven into the ground with sufficient protruding above the surface (usually 2" to 4") that the top of the stake may be rubbed with a large rasp or other rough metallic object that gives a good grating effect. The vibrations sent out will cause the worms to come to the surface where they can be collected. In areas where they are present nightcrawlers are similar places at night by using a flashlight to spot them. Care must be taken as they can disappear quicker than a wink.

The most popular method of procuring these baits, however, is to simply go to your favorite bait supplier and pick up a box or more. Handling and packaging worms has become a lot more sophisticated than it was years ago and worms of consistent size and quality are readily available year round.

There are many ways to keep worms in the best condition to use as bait. Basically, they will maintain their best condition if kept out of direct sunlight. Even when actually fishing it pays to pay close heed to this factor.

There are as many ways to put a worm on a hook as there are varieties of worms. One of the most preferred method is to put the point of the hook into the worm about one third of the distance from one end. Next slide the worm around the bend of the hook until you have impaled about one third of the body length on the hook. See photo for end result.

This is a simple procedure and the end result is that instead of a string of worm hanging down from the hook you have a bait with lively ends jutting out from the hook and consequently a more attractive bait. Hooked holding close to the bait and stay unmoving for what seems an end of time. Once he decides he wants something he hits it with gusto.

suits your particular requirements for a given variety of fish at a given time. Like the shrimp of salt water wherein everything will eat it so it is with the lowly worm. Just about everything that swims in sweet water relishes it.

THE WIGGLY CRICKET.
This extremely popular bait is used by more fishermen than all other baits. Particularly where bluegills are concerned. Properly looked after they will keep in good condition for long periods. If you have any left over after a fishing excursion just put a piece of apple or potato into the container, place the container in a dry, cool place and the crickets will do the rest.

There are times when it really doesn't matter how you hook a cricket. When the fish are on a feeding spree they tend to lose their inherent sense of caution and literally compete with one another for food. Such action is not the norm. Most of the time this cautious fellow likes to look over any offering somewhat critically before he decides whether or not it is his liking. Many times fishermen have seen him holding close to the bait and stay unmoving for what seems an end of time. Once he decides he wants something he hits it with gusto.

A little research among cricket fishermen indicates one of the most preferred methods of hooking a cricket. See photo. It is only necessary to put the hook point down through the back of the cricket, turn the hook 180 degrees and bring the point up through the collar of the bait. This method allows it to hang in an upright position and looks decidedly more natural than one hanging upside down or head down. Here again, patience is the key. The 'gill may strike immediately upon presentation but, more often than not, will carefully scrutinize the offering before striking. When he decides to strike you can be sure he will put a bend in your rod and a tasty addition to the table.

Crickets can be gathered up but it is a real project, especially to the untended. The best way is to buy them from a bait shop. They will be of uniform size and quality and though smaller than the wild variety do the job in-tended.

No matter how you hook a cricket, by the method show or simply through the collar they are short lived when in the water. A cricket, live or dead, is acceptable to the fish and is equally effective.

Talk has been revived lately to institute a "Universal" fishing license. By that we mean one that will be good for both Fresh and Salt water. It is indicated that many sportsmen have very definite ideas on this subject. Both pro and con. For those of you who fish both the sweet and the salt we would like to have your opinions on this. To this end a note to this paper, reflecting your thoughts, would be appreciated.

Area Report

and line commercial fishermen have, over the years, averaged 86 per cent of the snapper and grouper landed in Florida; that 65 per cent of the snapper and grouper landed in Florida is shipped out of the state; and, finally, where have the prices for fish gone down as a result of the appearance of fish traps?

For the die hard fisherman who is willing to work at it regardless of conditions, some nice fish are being taken among them some real "bawgs".

Jim Mark of the J. Mark Camp in Belle Glade tells us that "Lucky", Konrady of West Palm brought in a nice catch on Sunday which included a 9 lb. 9 oz. beauty. All taken on plastic worms. Ken Bowmaster of Belle Glade brought in one of 7 lbs. 8 oz. caught on a Spoon and Skirt combination. Both of the above catches were made in the lake proper. The Rim Canal also produced Bass including a limit catch by Russ Geller of West Palm Beach to 4 lbs. on Crank Bait. Russ has the reputation of being one of the better crank bait fishermen. (Practice makes perfect?).

Blue gills are running to good size and are active in the Rim Canal East of Lake

The current spate of hot weather has dimmed the enthusiasm of many fishermen. This is easy to understand. If it's 95 degrees in the shade what is it in the lake?

Our present southwest winds do not have the cooling effect of the southeasterlies and consequently one can melt off a lot of lard just sitting in a boat. I know. I did just that several days ago.

For the die hard fisherman who is willing to work at it regardless of conditions, some nice fish are being taken among them some real "bawgs".

Bluegills continue to cooperate with catches of 40 to 50 per boat coming in and they appear to prefer live crickets. The fish are running to good size and are in excellent condition.

For the time being, in the heat, first you will need the inspiration followed by no small amount of perspiration for the best results. "P."

Belle Glade charter revision losing support

BELLE GLADE—The drive to revise the city charter continued to lose steam Monday night when the city commission voted to table the move into the third phase of the study being performed to decide which changes should be suggested by the commission for the voters to decide during a referendum.

The study began several months ago when the city and Anderson, Inc., a consultant engineering and planning corporation based in West Palm Beach, to go over the city's charter and make suggested changes.

Aside from its own study, the company held private interviews with commissioners and other city officials, including the city manager, clerk, attorney and all department heads for their suggestions. They held a series of meetings with the commission to get the commission's response to a list of 34 proposed changes.

The suggested changes fell into three general categories; those which would bring the charter, which is in essence, the city's constitution and form the framework for the city government, into conformity with state law; those which made minor additions to state law and those which would have made substantial changes.

During the series of meetings with Ormon, who has set up his own company since undertaking the charter revision study, the commission has approved virtually every suggestion falling into the first category and disapproved virtually every suggestion falling into the third category. The second category of suggestions.

Also, during the interval, several of the commissioners have expressed increasingly strong feelings against making any changes at all and when the phase three question came up during Monday's regular meeting, two motions failed for lack of a second before a third motion to table it was accepted.

The question would have authorized Ormon to go ahead and draft a revised charter and code or ordinances, with conferences with the commissioners and city officials included during the study period.

The study would cost an estimated $12,371.

After some discussion of the study, Commissioner Dorothy Walker moved to authorize the study. When her motion failed for lack of a second, Commissioner Randy Davidson moved to disapprove the study, "and drop the whole thing."

Davidson's motion also died for lack of a second and Commissioner Claude Tindall moved to table the question. His motion contained a proviso to raise the question from the table. The motion passed, 4-0. Commissioner Tom Altman was absent from the meeting.

Rules or order don't allow discussion of a motion to table until the motion is made. The reason for his motion was because he believes the motion to approve or disapprove the continuation of the study may be unconstitutional on grounds it would take the commission to decide either way.

Tindall also recalled the commissioners had earlier agreed that while they may disagree on specific points in the proposed changes to the charter, their action to put it in a referendum or to withhold it, would be unanimous. He said he wanted Altman present for a decision either way.

"I didn't mean to kill the revision with the motion," he explained further. "I just believe the entire commission should be in on the decision." He went on to say he thought the timing for the revision, "in all wrong," that it is too late to do it on the Sept. 5 ballot and there's too much time between now and the 1981 election.

At least four of the five commissioners have said at various times over the past few weeks they were dissatisfied with the way the revision process is going and if they had known what some of the suggested changes would be, they wouldn't have voted for it to begin with.

In other action, the commission decided to go ahead with plans to draw up operating manuals for the city's water and sewer treatment plants, despite the comments by Public Utilities Director Kenneth Retterer that there are more pressing needs at the present time.

Retterer told the commissioners that he is in favor of the manuals but not at this time, that a higher priority should be given to eliminating an algae problem at the water plant and to install needed piping there.

Retterer said he had no idea how much the two projects would cost, but said they should be given higher priority than the proposed manuals, which would cost an estimated $12,000 and would be taken from the Water and Sewer Replacement and Repair (R&R) Fund.

Commissioner Walker asked City Manager Robert Sanders if buying the two manuals would affect whether or not the projects mentioned by Retterer could be accomplished. She also asked Sanders how much money is in the R&R Fund.

Sanders said there is now $162,000 in the R&R Fund, although policy is to maintain at least $100,000. He said the work mentioned by Retterer wouldn't affect the manuals either way.

"He's premature and talking out of line," Sanders said. "I'll hear about it tomorrow morning."

Miss Walker suggested a decision about the manuals be delayed until the next regular meeting to give Retterer time to come up with hard proposals on the two problems, along with costs.

Sanders said he doubted figures could be prepared in two weeks or two months. The commission voted 3-1 to buy the manuals, with Miss Walker voting against Mayor Ralph Kirk and Commissioners Davidson and Tindall.

Miss Walker explained she isn't opposed to buying the manuals but voted against the motion because she still felt the decision should be delayed until Retterer could come up with his proposals and cost figures.

do whatever it takes to interact with parents and the community."

One of the most important items, she said, which is on her agenda for action, is to re-evaluate the school district's recruiting procedures for teachers in Palm Beach County.

Miss Taylor said too many teachers are recruited from other parts of the nation and what she believed Florida is not doing is palm trees and beaches. "I believe we should make sure they have a more rounded view of the county and a better view of the Glades."

She said one particular facet of recruiting she would like to see installed would be to keep track of Palm Beach, including Glades area, graduates and recruitment efforts made to get them to come back to the area to teach.

In another area, she said she would like to see principals given more autonomy, such as in picking which teachers would be coming to the particular school, and be made accountable for the way the school is run, giving the principals both authority and responsibility.

"I believe too," she said, "that teachers and other school personnel breed and nurture our citizens and leaders of tomorrow...our mayors, our physicians, our scientists, our senators and our presidents."

"Our teachers mold these students into what they will become and I feel they need to be paid a salary commensurate with the phenomenal job they are charged with doing. They have the job of shaping our society and they aren't being paid enough to do it."

"There are kids in our schools," Miss Taylor said, who see their parents and brothers and sisters going out into a corn field and earning $105 a day. How can they respect teaching as an honorable profession when they see that disparity in the rewards?"

Miss Taylor said she also believes the Palm Beach County School system is top heavy with administrators, and I would like to see some of that fat trimmed off and put back into the classrooms where it will do the kids the most good.

"I think by this," she said, "we might more wisely use our taxpayers' dollars."

"These are the things I'm concerned about," she said, "and, if elected, I will work very hard to resolve them."

Miss Taylor was born in Belle Glade and was educated in local schools, graduating from Palmer Memorial Institute in Sedalia, Mo. She received a BA in biology from Fiske University of Nashville, Tenn., and MEd and education specialist's degree from the University of Florida, both in counselor education, and at present is working toward her A.A. degree in funeral service education at Miami Dade Community College.

She is former teacher at Lake Shore Junior-Senior High Belle Glade High Schools, a former university administrator at Old Dominion University at Norfolk, Va., and is presently self-employed as a partner with her brother, Willard C. Taylor Jr. at Taylor Funeral Home.

She is a member of the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce, the Elite Community Club and the Glades Mahogany Club. She is president of the Glades Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, a board member of the Palm Beach County Urban League and Palm Beach County Planned Parenthood, a member of the Lake Shore Middle School Advisory Committee, a member of the West Area Teacher Media Committee and a member of St. John's Baptist Church.

If you can't stand the heat in the kitchen

Try these recipes keep your cool

Every week at least one batch of recipes arrives in the mail. A few are sorted out and shared with our readers. But in view of the current heat wave when nobody can stand the heat in the kitchen and everybody's appetite needs tempting, we thought it would be the right time to pass on some recipes that let the cook keep his or her cool and yet perk up wilted appetites.

The first two recipes call for yogurt, a cool-sounding ingredient all by itself. These will appeal to those who like to cook with natural foods.

Tahitian Chicken Salad

2 cups cubed, cooked chicken meat
2 1/2 cups sliced water chestnuts
1/2 cup sliced celery
1/4 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 medium fresh ripe pineapple*
2 1/2 cups plain yogurt
4 tablespoons pineapple juice
4 teaspoons ground ginger

*Or use 1 can (8 1/4 ounces) pineapple chunks, drained; and serve on lettuce leaves.

Mix chicken, water chestnuts, celery and flavor enhancer; cover and refrigerate. Cut pineapple in quarters lengthwise; cut out fruit, leaving 1/2-inch thin shells. Cut fruit into chunks, discarding core; toss into chicken salad mixture. Mix together yogurt, pineapple juice and ginger for dressing. Stir 1/2 cup dressing into mixture. Spoon chicken salad into pineapple shells. Serve with remaining dressing. Yield: 4 servings.

Icy Olive Soup

1 pint plain low fat yogurt
1 (10 1/2 oz.) can condensed chicken consommé
1 cup pitted California ripe olives, sliced
1/2 cup unpeeled cucumber, sliced paper thin
1/4 cup green onion, thinly sliced
1/4 cup green pepper, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Stir yogurt until smooth. Add remaining ingredients. Stir. Chill at least 2 hours before serving. Garnish with additional ripe olive slices. Makes 1 quart.

Yankees from the New York-New Jersey area seem to be more familiar than most people with the barbecue treat called "Spiedis" - with love from Italy. The original recipe calls for lamb but any meat can be substituted, including venison. Cut the meat into one-inch chunks. Marinate for an hour or so at room temperature and then for at least 24 hours in the refrigerator, for best results - longer, if you like. Then skewer the chunks and barbecue them for Italian shish-kabobs. Remove meat from skewers sandwiched in a slice of Italian bread.

Spiedi Sauce

Combine: 1 tablespoon fennel seed, juice of 1 lemon, 2 bay leaves, 1 teaspoon oregano, 1 teaspoon crushed red pepper, 2-3 cloves of garlic, one-half cup of cooking oil and one-half cup of vinegar.

And here's a recipe for "Italian Vegetable Rice" that seems just right to accompany those spiedis.

Italian Vegetable Rice

3 cups sliced zucchini
1 1/2 cups Minute rice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (16 oz.) stewed tomatoes
1 1/4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon garlic powder

Saute zucchini and rice in butter in skillet until slightly browned. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 5 minutes, or until most of liquid is absorbed. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes about 5 cups or 4 servings.

The time is right for inviting friends and family over for an old-fashioned oyster fry. The necessary ingredients are few and simple, and the cooking time is minimal. When possible, cook outside to keep the kitchen cool.

The Florida Department of Natural Resources notes that oysters are one of nature's richest sources of iron. Six oysters supplies more than a day's minimum requirement of iron. Oysters also supply protein, essential vitamins, and other minerals as well.

Shucked oysters are marketed in two sizes - selects or standards - selects being the larger size. Fresh shucked oysters are plump and have a natural creamy color and clear liquid. If properly handled and packed in ice in the refrigerator, freshly shucked oysters will maintain quality for about one week.

Crispy Fried Oysters

2 cans (12 ounces each) oysters, fresh or frozen
1 1/2 cups dry bread crumbs
1 1/2 cups flour
1/4 cup milk
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Fat for frying
Lemon Wedges
Quick Tartar Sauce

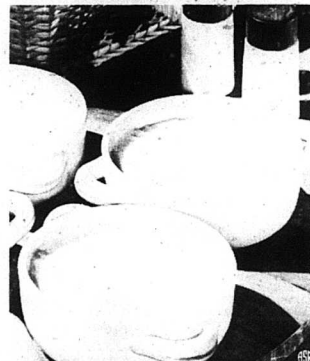

Thaw if frozen. Drain. Combine crumbs and flour. Combine milk, eggs, salt, and pepper. Roll oysters in crumb mixture. Dip oysters in egg mixture and roll in crumb mixture and roll in crumb mixture again.

To deep fat fry: Place oysters in a single layer in a fry basket. Fry in deep fat, 350 degrees F., for 2 to 3 minutes or until oysters are brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

To pan fry: Fry oysters in a single layer in hot fat in a 12-inch fry pan. Fry at a moderate heat for 2 to 3 minutes or until brown. Turn carefully. Fry 2 to 3 minutes longer or until oysters are brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with lemon wedges and Quick Tartar Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Quick Tartar Sauce
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1/2 cup drained sweet relish
Combine ingredients. Chill. Makes approximately 1 1/2 cups sauce.

Try this recipe, a variation on "Swiss Eggs," for a breakfast change or serve it as a light lunch or supper with the "Broccoli Salad" accompaniment.

Baked Eggs Mornay

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
Dash salt
Dash pepper
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons shredded Swiss cheese
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
4 eggs

In small saucepan melt butter. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring constantly, over medium-high heat until smooth and bubbly. Stir in milk all at once. Cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens. Remove from heat. Stir in cheeses until Swiss cheese is melted.

Grease two individual ramekins, shallow baking dishes or 9 1/2-ounce custard cups. Pour about 1/4 cup Mornay Sauce into each ramekin. Break and slip two eggs into each ramekin. Pour about 1/4 cup Mornay Sauce around edge. Cover. Bake in preheated 325° F. toaster oven 30 to 35 minutes or until eggs are desired doneness.

Note: if you like, double the recipe and bake in a 325° F. conventional oven.

Broccoli Salad

Cut 1 bunch fresh broccoli into one inch pieces. Cook, covered in small amount boiling salted water until barely tender. Combine 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 cup sour cream, 1 teaspoon minced onion, dash cayenne and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Serve over hot broccoli. Makes 4 servings.

And now, here are three delectable desserts, good with any meal at anytime but especially good for these hot days because they're light and quick to make.

Over the years I have come to recognize that I have an extraordinary talent. It's no simple accomplishment that can be labeled as being able to play the bagpipes with one hand tied behind my back or the ability to touch my nose with my tongue.

In fact, it's a kind of negative trait which means I've got it but I can't flaunt it because I don't know what to do with it.

I can't even define it. The best I can do is to offer some examples and hope that somebody somewhere can tell me if they see how I could either get rich off it or use it for the betterment of mankind.

Two places stand out in my mind as especially conducive to expressing my talent: the bank and the post office. I can walk into either establishment during a rush hour and with a never-failing sensitivity pick out the one line of customers that's not destined to move one pace forward for the next 20 minutes.

In the bank I move unhesitatingly to the rear of the line which contains only four people ahead of me. Each of them has, however, agreed to cash the paychecks of everyone in their company plus all and my first cousins.

And among them will be an employee of a Chinese import-export firm which issues checks written in Chinese. Each of which must be verified with the bank bookkeeping department. In Shanghai.

If I elect to change lines because the one at the next window is moving at three times the speed (people have been known to go home and come back with next week's paycheck while I'm still standing in the first line) I don't win a thing. I will find myself just behind somebody who is paid annually with the proceeds from a vending machine and wants it all converted into $2 bills Series 1942B.

... and whatnot

by Ailsa Dewing

A talent for getting into line-ups

It's much the same story at the post office. Last week, for instance, I scurried into a line-up of only two people. "Incredible," I said to myself, noting that there were at least six people in each of two other lines.

And it was incredible. In both other lines everyone was buying 15-cent stamps. In my line, the first customer was sending off 27 money orders, and the second one was picking up a package that nobody could find in the whole building or out in the parking lot.

Eventually, of course, someone noticed the picker-upper was in the wrong post office. The package was being held in Chicago.

That hurried things up. We only had to wait until it was forwarded. Thanks to overnight express service we were all home by noon of the next day.

It goes without saying (but it won't) that I am at the top of my form in a grocery store check-out line. I step into line and the register tape runs out - right on cue. A new tape is inserted and in the twinkling of an eye, it jams in the machine. The shelf life date on my quart of milk comes and goes while I wait. The expiration dates on my refund coupons run out and toddlers outgrow their little cart seats before my very eyes.

Only once did I try to outwit my fate and change lines. As I unloaded my groceries (both of them) onto the counter, I watched the check-out lady fade from my sight. She was hastening away to the register with the stuck tape to lend a hand. In a fortnight or less she was back - just in time to go on her lunch break. After which we held a retirement party for her.

Anyway, that's my talent which has no name but which I could surely put to use, it seems. Meanwhile, if you are standing in line anywhere at anytime and a weary soul ahead of you offers to sell you a sealed envelope for a $1 - take a chance. It might be a winning lottery number but it's more apt to be a secret message from me: "Take my advice and change lines when you're still young enough to enjoy your life."

It's the only way I can think of to make my talent pay off.

Just for the record, I did not shoot J.R. I do not know who did. And more to the point, I don't give a rip who did. There. I've said it and I'm glad.

Taking It From the Top

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

Being like the world can bring destruction. Following the ways of secular society can bring immorality and spiritual death.

A Christian is called to walk worthy of his calling in Christ. He is to be in the world and not of the world.

"Do not be conformed to this world but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that you may prove what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect."

Conformity today is a fast and furious social reaction. Many people want to be "in" and therefore rush headlong into the latest activity.

In the last few years sports events have attracted millions of fans who are rabid and dedicated to the cause of their team. Attendance at the game or at the TV set is compulsory.

Along with the loyalty to the god of sports has come a new freedom which is really immorality. It isn't really new because this has happened whenever the ways of the world have overcome the ways of Christ.

Sin is in whether you dress it up or not. It is rebellion against the way of God. This road of immorality is an easy one because it is down hill. There seems to be no turning back because it is so popular.

Paul not only says "don't be conformed to the world but be transformed by the renewal of your mind." A Christian's commitment to Christ consists in a transformation into a new life. This is done by having the mind of Christ running and renewing your ways of doing things.

This transformation is not a decoration but a complete remodeling, not just putting on wallpaper. Radical change is the only way to a new life.

It is our worldliness that keeps us from having communication with God. Except we be reborn and will live under the influence of the love of God we will not enter into the kingdom of Heaven to live with Christ.

We become like unto Him we follow. Let Christ enter your life for a renewal of life and true satisfaction.

GOLD COAST GARDENER

By Gene Joyner
Urban Horticulturist
Palm Beach County

A lot of people at this time of year still would like to grow a few vegetables and although during our warm summer months we are restricted as to the various types of vegetables that we can grow it is still possible to have a summer garden.

Most of us who garden regularly normally do it only during the fall and winter months when most vegetables thrive best and there are fewer pests and disease problems. During our hot summer months vegetables are more difficult to grow because of the humid conditions which promote increased fungus problems and generally we have increased insect pests as well.

If you would, however, like to grow a summer garden, here are some tips to be successful. Make sure you have an open, sunny location is selected for the garden and hopefully make sure it is an area that has excellent drainage. Our heavy thunder showers can dump quite a bit of water in a short period of time and it is essential that the garden not be submerged for more than a very brief period; otherwise, many vegetables will drown.

The garden site should be built up with soil amendments such as peat moss, manure, compost or other organic material and treated for nematodes prior to the vegetables being planted.

Selection of the vegetables to be planted is very critical since there are very few that will tolerate the hot conditions. Some which will be very successful are black-eyed peas, lima beans, pole beans, bush beans, okra, radishes, cherry tomatoes, pepper and several others.

Make sure when sowing seed that they are watered daily until they germinate and that you protect young seedlings from insects such as cutworms and diseases such as damping-off.

It will generally be necessary to water more frequently during the summer because of the high temperatures unless there is sufficient rainfall. Fertilizing may also be needed on a weekly basis since soluble fertilizers are washed from the soil very quickly by rains or frequent irrigation.

Insects and diseases will be a major problem and chemicals for control of these will be available at many garden supply stores.

In addition, weeds will grow almost overnight and a good heavy mulch will save you hours of handpicking or hoeing.

A summer garden normally will require attention several times a week so plan to give it that much time if you want to be successful. If you have children gardening can be made a family project and also it will give you something to do during the summer when school is out.

Many garden stores and retail nurseries are excellent sources of information on gardening if you have problems and the Cooperative Extension Service also offers many free bulletins and pamphlets on vegetable gardening.

All this glory from one tiny seed! The sunflower towers taller than a man, its huge golden head filled with thousands of seeds . . . and every seed contains the mystery of life and growth that science cannot explain.

We are surrounded by miracles that God did not create. Who created them? Who created us? By the reasoning powers of our own marvelous minds we can be guided to see that God the Creator has made all things according to His plan, and that we can only achieve our highest development by living in harmony with it.

How can we know God's will for us? We need only a small seed of faith, for He will lead us in His way if we ask Him . . . and that seed will grow and flourish under His loving care.

Choose sunglasses wisely

The importance of sunglasses to provide visual comfort and protection is stressed by the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

"When choosing sunglasses, make sure the lenses are formulated to block ultra-violet rays," advises E.W. McGuinness, president of the Florida affiliate. "These are the rays that cause sunburn, and eyes as well as skin need to be protected from them."

Orange and buttermilk cooler

During the long hot days of summer, you'll find Orange Buttermilk Refreshers very cooling indeed. Place 4 scoops of orange sherbert in blender or mixing bowl with 2 tablespoons sugar and one pint of cold buttermilk. Beat until fluffy. Serve icy cold. This makes three cups.

If you're having difficulty persuading your family to drink their quota of milk, it could be it's not cold enough. Surveys show that when milk is served at 40 degrees F., most people like it lots. Pour milk into ice cube trays, let freeze, then pop a few of them in with the milk to be served, and watch them go for it!

Belle Glade as ks help

BELLE GLADE — The city commission resolved Monday night to ask federal agencies having jurisdiction, including President Carter and Congress, for help in alleviating the financial burden of South Florida brought on by Cuban and Haitian refugees.

The resolution adopted by the commission was drafted at the request two weeks ago by Commissioner Randy Davidson. It's thrust is that since the refugee influx was brought about because of federal policies, the federal government should pay the cost.

"WHEREAS," the resolution reads, "a vast majority of such Cuban and Haitian refugees are now, and will be in the future, expected to settle in the State of Florida, and in particular the southern portion thereof, and

"WHEREAS, the influx of such refugees into the State of Florida is now, and in the future will continue to impose a disproportionate economic burden upon the State and its citizens, and in particular those situated in the southern portion of the State, and

"WHEREAS, it is essential to the economic stability of this State and those portions thereof of impacted by reason of the location of such refugees in the State and the respective communities are such as to generate an economic burden of disastrous proportions unless such burdens can be distributed proportionately throughout our nation, which distribution can only be equitably obtained through economic assistance from the Federal Government, and

"WHEREAS, the conditions existing by reason of the location of those refugees in this State, and in particular the southern portion thereof, have caused an emergency to exist which needs immediate assistance, now, therefore,

"BE IT RESOLVED by the City Commission of the City of Belle Glade, Florida, that the President of the United States, the United States Congress and such Federal agencies as may have jurisdiction and authority relating to the general health, education to the welfare of such refugees, take immediate steps to alleviate the economic disaster and burden imposed upon the State of Florida, and in particular the southern portion thereof, and its citizens by reason of the huge influx of Cuban and Haitian refugees into this State and community."

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?
More and better quality food, lower prices, and a better economy than what might otherwise have, can come about if some legislators have their way - and a lot of Americans are communicating with their legislators to help make sure they do. These representatives are working to help the growers of our food keep doing a good job. Today's growers - four percent of the population compared to 17 percent 25 years ago - grow enough food to feed 220 million Americans and millions more in other countries on the same amount of land farmed in 1910 to feed 80 million.
Grain and produce exporters improve our balance of payments - and so our economy - by some $32 billion a year and despite the 48 percent increase in the food price index since 1973, the average American spends only about 17 percent of his disposable personal income on food. In West Germany, the figure is about 40 percent.
According to the experts, one of the main reasons for the success so efficient is that they use crop protection chemicals. Without these chemicals, we would lose half our crops every year. Some crops would be almost completely wiped out by insects, disease weeds and other pests. Some legislation has suggested we make it even more difficult than it already is for growers to use these chemicals. Others oppose that.
It's given voters and taxpayers food for thought - and a good reason to write.
